

ABSTRACT

Gas lighter comprising a reservoir, for containing a fuel, the reservoir having an upper wall through which a well and a gas-dispensing device passes. The gas-dispensing device includes at least one tubular element arranged in the well. The tubular element including at least one snap-fitting member designed to cooperate with a retaining element secured to the upper wall of the reservoir in the well when the tubular element is assembled with the reservoir.